

Key Points - Don't be a Bully!

Many people with autism have trouble reading the social cues, body language, and facial expressions of others. Therefore, you may not realize that your behavior or actions are making others angry or irritated.

Whether you mean to or not, you can get in big trouble if you bully or harass someone. You could even get fired.

A few examples of bullying or harassment include:

1. Repeatedly calling or texting someone who does not want to talk to you
2. Repeatedly asking someone on a date who does not want to date you
3. Touching someone in a way that makes them feel uncomfortable
4. Repeatedly doing a behavior that bothers someone when you have been asked to stop
