

Sometimes, I may want to interrupt a coworker or supervisor to talk about things that I am really interested in and my favorite hobbies. If I interrupt someone when they are working to talk about these topics, they will be annoyed because I am preventing them from doing their work. This can get me in trouble or even fired!

So, when I want to talk about my interests and hobbies, I need to wait until a better time. I should always try to talk about these topics when I am at home and sometimes when we are taking breaks at work.